Top Scenic Routes for Self Guided Driving Tours of Sedona

One of the greatest advantages of self guided driving tours of Sedona is the ability to navigate scenic routes that showcase the region's breathtaking landscapes. The area is renowned for its vibrant red rock formations, winding canyons, and panoramic vistas that can be explored via various well-established drives.

Red Rock Scenic Byway (State Route 179)

The Red Rock Scenic Byway is a premier route that stretches approximately 7.5 miles through the heart of Sedona's red rock country. This drive offers stunning views of iconic formations such as Bell Rock, Cathedral Rock, and Courthouse Butte. The route features numerous pullouts and trailheads, making it an ideal starting point for self guided tours aiming to combine driving with short hikes or photography stops.

Oak Creek Canyon Scenic Drive (State Route 89A)

Extending north of Sedona, Oak Creek Canyon Scenic Drive is a 14-mile stretch known for its lush vegetation, towering cliffs, and flowing waterways. This route offers a contrast to the desert landscape, with shaded groves and opportunities to visit Slide Rock State Park. A self guided driving tour here provides a diverse sensory experience, blending red rocks with verdant nature.

Schnebly Hill Road

For adventurous travelers with a suitable vehicle, Schnebly Hill Road offers an off-road experience with some of the most spectacular views in Sedona. This dirt road climbs over 1,000 feet in elevation, providing sweeping panoramas of the red rock formations and the Verde Valley below. It is recommended for those comfortable with rugged terrain and seeking less crowded, remote scenery.

Must-Visit Attractions and Natural Landmarks

Self guided driving tours of Sedona are enriched by stops at numerous cultural and natural landmarks. These sites provide insight into the region's geology, history, and spiritual significance.

Cathedral Rock

Cathedral Rock is one of Sedona's most photographed landmarks. Accessible via a short but steep hike, the area around Cathedral Rock offers stunning views and opportunities for meditation and reflection. Parking near the trailhead allows convenient access during a self guided driving tour.

Chapel of the Holy Cross

Built into the red rocks, the Chapel of the Holy Cross is an architectural marvel and spiritual destination. Visitors can drive directly to the chapel and appreciate its unique design alongside panoramic views of the surrounding landscape.

Bell Rock and Courthouse Butte

These neighboring rock formations are popular for hiking and photography. Bell Rock features several trail options that vary in difficulty, making it a versatile stop on a self guided driving tour. Nearby Courthouse Butte complements the scenery with its massive, monolithic presence.

Red Rock State Park

This environmental education center offers walking trails, wildlife viewing, and interpretive programs. It is a great place to learn about Sedona's ecology and geology while enjoying a peaceful natural setting.

Planning and Preparation Tips for Driving Tours

To ensure a smooth and enjoyable experience during self guided driving tours of Sedona, proper planning and preparation are essential. This includes vehicle considerations, timing, and navigation tools.

Vehicle Selection and Maintenance

While most main roads and scenic byways are accessible by standard vehicles, some routes like Schnebly Hill Road require high-clearance or four-wheel-drive vehicles. Prior to departure, ensure the vehicle is in good condition with sufficient fuel, especially as gas stations may be sparse in some areas.

Timing and Seasonal Considerations

Early morning or late afternoon drives are recommended for avoiding crowds and capturing the best light conditions for photography. Seasonal variations in temperature and weather can impact driving conditions and trail accessibility, so checking local forecasts and conditions is advised.

Navigation and Safety Tools

Using GPS devices or smartphone apps with offline maps is beneficial, as cell service can be intermittent in remote areas. Carrying a physical map as a backup is also prudent. Additionally, bringing essentials such as water, snacks, sun protection, and a first aid kit enhances safety during the tour.

Local Culture, Dining, and Shopping Highlights

Self guided driving tours of Sedona can be complemented by exploring the town's cultural sites, local cuisine, and artisan shops, enriching the overall travel experience.

Art Galleries and Studios

Sedona is renowned for its vibrant arts community. Numerous galleries and studios feature works inspired by the natural beauty of the area, including paintings, sculptures, and jewelry. Visiting these venues provides insight into local culture and offers unique souvenirs.

Dining Options

The culinary scene in Sedona ranges from casual cafes to fine dining establishments. Many restaurants emphasize Southwestern flavors and locally sourced ingredients, making them perfect stops to relax and refuel during a driving tour.

Farmers Markets and Local Shops

Farmers markets and specialty shops offer fresh produce, handmade crafts, and regional products. These venues allow travelers to engage with the community and discover authentic Sedona goods.

Safety and Environmental Considerations

Preserving Sedona's natural environment and ensuring personal safety are paramount during self guided driving tours of Sedona.

Respecting Natural Habitats

Visitors should stay on designated roads and trails to protect fragile ecosystems and prevent erosion. Avoid disturbing wildlife and pack out all trash to maintain the pristine condition of the landscape.

Driving Safety

Some roads are narrow, winding, and steep, requiring cautious driving and adherence to posted speed limits. Weather conditions can change rapidly, so being prepared for sudden rain or temperature shifts is important.

Emergency Preparedness

Carrying emergency supplies such as water, flashlight, and a charged phone is advisable. Informing someone of travel plans and expected return times enhances safety during remote excursions.
