The six categories include literal comprehension, inferential comprehension, vocabulary understanding, main idea identification, author's purpose analysis, and summarization skills. Each category addresses a unique aspect of comprehension, allowing students to approach texts from multiple perspectives and develop a holistic understanding.

Literal comprehension involves grasping the explicit meaning of the text. It requires students to recognize facts, details, and straightforward information presented in the passage. Mastering this category ensures that students can accurately recall and understand the basic content of any reading material.
