Makharij al-Huruf refers to the specific points in the mouth and throat from where each letter is pronounced. There are 17 primary articulation points in Arabic, and knowing these is essential for correct pronunciation. The main categories include:

- Throat: Letters such as 'ع' ('ayn) and 'ه' (hā) originate from the throat.
- Tongue: Various parts of the tongue articulate different letters, for instance, the tip, the middle, and the back.
- Lips: Letters like 'ب' (bā) and 'م' (mīm) are pronounced using the lips.

2. Sifat al-Huruf (Characteristics of the Letters)

Each Arabic letter possesses unique characteristics that affect its pronunciation. These characteristics can be broadly categorized into two groups:

- Essential Characteristics: These include qualities like heaviness (ghunnah), lightness (qarā'ah), and clarity (iḍāḥ).
- Accidental Characteristics: These traits can change depending on their position in a word or sentence, such as idgham (merging letters) or iqlab (changing the letter 'ب' to a 'م').

3. Rules of Tajweed

The rules of Tajweed govern how letters and words interact during recitation. Here are some of the critical rules:

- Ghunna: A nasal sound that occurs in certain letters.
- Idgham: The merging of two letters when a second letter has a specific relationship with the first.
- Iqlab: The transformation of the letter 'ب' into 'م' when followed by a 'م'.
