Background of The Detection Club

The Detection Club was founded in 1930 by a group of notable British crime writers, including Agatha Christie, Dorothy L. Sayers, and Anthony Berkeley. Formation of The Floating Admiral

In 1931, the members of The Detection Club decided to undertake a unique collaborative project. - Anthony Berkeley
- John Rhode
- Freeman Wills Crofts

Each writer was tasked with crafting a chapter that would build upon the preceding ones while adhering to the overall plot framework established by Knox, who was appointed as the "master" of the project.
