Colonialism and Imperialism

- Scramble for Africa: The late 19th century saw European powers competing for territory in Africa. This period, often referred to as the "Scramble for Africa," was marked by brutal exploitation and subjugation of African peoples.
- Moral Justifications: European powers often rationalized their colonization efforts through a belief in the superiority of Western civilization, claiming a "civilizing mission" to bring progress and enlightenment.
- Conrad's Own Experiences: Joseph Conrad worked as a sailor in the Congo Free State, an experience that profoundly influenced his writing. He witnessed firsthand the exploitation and atrocities committed against the African people.

The Congo River as a Metaphor

The Congo River serves as both a physical and symbolic journey in Heart of Darkness.

- Journey into the Unknown: The river represents a voyage into the depths of the human psyche and the unknown aspects of civilization.
- Isolation and Desolation: As Marlow travels up the river, he becomes increasingly isolated, mirroring the desolation and moral ambiguity of imperialism.

- Civilization vs. Savagery: The novella raises questions about what constitutes civilization. As Marlow journeys deeper into the Congo, he encounters the brutal realities of colonialism, challenging the idea that European society is inherently superior.
- Kurtz as a Representation: Kurtz embodies this duality—he is both an eloquent intellectual and a savage ruler over the Congo. His descent into madness reflects the potential for darkness that lies within all individuals when stripped of societal norms.

Conrad critiques the devastating effects of imperialism on both the colonizers and the colonized.

- Exploitation of Resources: The novella highlights the exploitation of Africa's resources and people, depicting the greed and moral bankruptcy of European powers.
- Dehumanization: The African characters are often portrayed as mere commodities or obstacles in the colonizers' pursuit of wealth, emphasizing the dehumanizing nature of imperialism.
