

the monkeys paw assessment answers

The monkeys paw assessment answers are essential for understanding the underlying themes and moral lessons presented in W.W. Jacobs' classic short story, "The Monkey's Paw." This tale, steeped in supernatural elements, explores the consequences of tampering with fate and the dangers of desire. As we delve into the narrative, we will analyze the key elements of the story, including character development, themes, and literary devices, while providing insights that can assist in answering assessment questions effectively.

Overview of "The Monkey's Paw"

"The Monkey's Paw" is a horror story that revolves around the White family, who come into possession of a mysterious monkey's paw that grants them three wishes. However, these wishes come with dire consequences, serving as a cautionary tale about greed and the unforeseen repercussions of one's choices.

Plot Summary

The story begins with Mr. White, Mrs. White, and their son Herbert enjoying a quiet evening. Their friend, Sergeant-Major Morris, visits and introduces them to the monkey's paw, which he claims has the power to grant three wishes. Despite his warnings about the paw's dark history and the consequences of using it, the Whites decide to make a wish.

1. First Wish: Mr. White wishes for £200 to pay off their mortgage. The next day, Herbert dies in a work accident, and the family receives exactly £200 as compensation.
2. Second Wish: Devastated by their loss, Mrs. White urges her husband to use the second wish to bring Herbert back. Mr. White reluctantly complies, but the return of their son is not as they had hoped—he appears as a mangled version of himself.

3. Third Wish: In a panic, Mr. White uses the third wish to undo the previous one, hoping to send his son back to rest.

The story concludes ambiguously, leaving readers to ponder the true cost of their desires.

Character Analysis

Understanding the characters in "The Monkey's Paw" is crucial for answering interpretive questions about their motivations and the moral implications of their actions.

Mr. White

- Role: The patriarch of the family and the first to interact with the monkey's paw.
- Traits: Naive, curious, and ultimately regretful.
- Development: Mr. White's journey reflects the theme of hubris. His initial disbelief in the paw's power leads to tragic consequences. By the end, he is a broken man who recognizes the folly of his actions.

Mrs. White

- Role: Mr. White's wife, who is driven by grief.
- Traits: Emotional, desperate, and eventually irrational.
- Development: Mrs. White's character arc is centered on her overwhelming desire to reclaim her son. Her insistence on making the second wish demonstrates how grief can cloud judgment.

Herbert White

- Role: The couple's only son, whose death serves as a catalyst for the plot.
- Traits: Lighthearted, practical, and ultimately tragic.
- Development: Herbert's character, while not as deeply explored as his parents', symbolizes the innocent victim of the family's wishes. His playful skepticism about the paw foreshadows the tragic outcomes.

Sergeant-Major Morris

- Role: The man who introduces the monkey's paw to the White family.
- Traits: Cautious and experienced.
- Development: Morris acts as a foreshadowing figure, warning the Whites about the consequences of their wishes. His reluctance to want the paw back symbolizes the wisdom gained through experience.

Themes and Motifs

The richness of "The Monkey's Paw" lies in its exploration of several themes and motifs, which are often the focus of assessment questions.

The Consequences of Desire

- The story illustrates the idea that unchecked desire can lead to destruction. Each wish granted by the paw results in unforeseen and tragic consequences.
- The White family's initial greed blinds them to the potential repercussions of their wishes, underscoring the moral lesson about being careful what you wish for.

Fate vs. Free Will

- "The Monkey's Paw" raises questions about fate and the extent to which individuals can control their destinies.
- The story suggests that while the characters believe they can manipulate fate through their wishes, their actions ultimately lead to inevitable tragedy.

Supernatural Elements

- The monkey's paw serves as a supernatural object that symbolizes the unknown forces at play in life.
- The story employs elements of horror and suspense, creating an atmosphere of dread that enhances the impact of the narrative.

Literary Devices

Jacobs employs various literary devices to convey his themes and enhance the reader's experience.

Foreshadowing

- From the beginning, Sergeant-Major Morris's reluctance to discuss the paw forebodes the tragedy that will unfold.
- Specific phrases and descriptions hint at the dark outcomes tied to the wishes, creating tension.

Irony

- The story is rich in situational irony. For example, the Whites wish for money to alleviate their financial struggles, only to have their son die, resulting in a payment that fulfills their wish.
- This irony underscores the unpredictability of life and the dangers of desire.

Imagery

- Jacobs uses vivid imagery to evoke emotions and create a haunting atmosphere. Descriptions of the paw and its effects paint a compelling picture of horror and regret.
- The contrast between the mundane life of the Whites and the supernatural events serves to heighten the story's impact.
