The Vietnam War, often described through an intimate history, began as a complex struggle rooted in colonialism, nationalism, and Cold War politics. After decades under French colonial rule, Vietnam sought independence, leading to the First Indochina War. The division of Vietnam into North and South in 1954 intensified ideological conflicts, with the communist North supported by the Soviet Union and China, and the South backed by the United States. The war's origins also involve the global efforts to contain communism, central to U.S. foreign policy during the Cold War.
