The Tupperware 3 Piece Steamer consists of three main components: the base, the insert, and the lid. Each part plays a vital role in the steaming process, allowing for even cooking while preventing moisture loss.

Components of the Steamer

1. Base: The base is designed to hold water, which is essential for creating steam. It is typically wider and deeper than the other components to accommodate the necessary liquid for cooking.
2. Insert: The insert sits above the base and is where the food is placed. This component is perforated, allowing steam to circulate freely and cook the food evenly.
