2. Setting Up Your Profile

- Click on your profile icon in the upper right corner to access your account settings.
- Fill in your professional details, including your job title, department, and areas of interest.
- Upload a profile picture to enhance your learning community presence.

Exploring Learning Content

Once you have set up your profile, you can start exploring the learning resources available to you.

1. Searching for Courses

Use the search bar at the top of the page to find specific courses or topics. You can refine your search using filters such as:

- Course type (e.g., instructor-led, online)
- Skill level (e.g., beginner, intermediate, advanced)
- Duration
- Learning path

2. Enrolling in Courses

To enroll in a course:

- Select the desired course from the search results.
- Review the course description, objectives, and prerequisites.

- Click on the "Enroll" button to secure your spot.

3. Tracking Your Progress

Workday Learning allows you to track your learning journey easily:

- Access your learning dashboard to view completed courses, ongoing courses, and recommended learning paths.
- Check your progress percentage and any upcoming deadlines.

Creating and Managing Learning Content

If you are an administrator or content creator, creating and managing learning materials is a vital part of your role.

1. Creating a Course

To create a course:

- Navigate to the "Course Management" section.
- Click on "Create New Course."
- Fill in the course details, including title, description, and learning objectives.
- Upload any relevant materials, such as presentations, videos, or documents.

2. Curation of Learning Resources

Curating learning resources involves gathering existing materials from various sources:

- Use the "Curation" feature to compile relevant articles, videos, and other content.
- Organize resources into categories for easy access by learners.
- Regularly update curated content to keep it relevant and engaging.

3. Setting Learning Paths

Learning paths guide employees through a series of courses:

- In the "Learning Paths" section, select "Create New Path."
- Define the path's structure by adding courses, prerequisites, and milestones.

- Assign the learning path to specific employees or groups.

Utilizing Analytics and Reporting

Analytics is crucial for understanding the effectiveness of your learning programs.

1. Accessing Reports

To access reports:

- Navigate to the "Analytics" section within Workday Learning.
- Choose from various report templates, including course completion rates, learner engagement, and skill assessments.

2. Customizing Reports

You can customize reports to meet your specific needs:

- Select the data you want to include, such as learner demographics or course feedback.
- Save your customized report for future use or share it with stakeholders.

3. Analyzing Data for Continuous Improvement

Utilize the insights gained from analytics to improve your learning programs:

- Identify areas where learners may struggle and adjust course content accordingly.
- Gather feedback from learners to enhance course delivery and relevance.
- Set measurable goals for future learning initiatives based on past performance.

Best Practices for Workday Learning

To maximize the effectiveness of Workday Learning, consider the following best practices:

- Encourage Regular Engagement: Foster a culture of continuous learning by encouraging employees to engage with the platform regularly.
