Start by collecting information about family members. This can include:

Step 2: Choose a Format

Family trees can be presented in various formats. Choose one based on the age group and preferences of the individuals using the worksheet. Some common formats include:

- Traditional Tree Diagram: A visual representation that starts with one individual or couple at the base and branches out to subsequent generations.
- Tabular Format: A structured table listing family members in rows and columns, detailing relationships and essential information.
